Labor Party in Japan.

A labor party has been formed in Tokyo and a strong manifesto has been issued declaring that the existing labor conditions are deplorable.

The new party's programme includes opposition to monopolies, universal male and female suffrage, a general increase of wages and reduction of hours, the abolition of capital punishment and of titular distinctions, fundamental reform in taxation and arbitration in all international questions.

Lyman H. Howe's Life Drama.

There is a fascination in the motion picture which appeals to everyone. This is especially true of Lyman H. Howe's ever welcome life drama to be seen in Barre opera house, Thursday, Nov. 8.

It is by common acceptance the most popular and perfect exhibition of this kind in the world today. Over a million patrons, to whom the name Lyman H. Howe is a synonym for an attraction which invariably makes good, every promise made, await its semi-annual visit with ever renewed interest. The new programme is precisely the kind people want. It is clean, clear, wholesome from beginning to end. It cannot fail to interest the least sensitive eye as well as delight the infant mind. The scenes are not confined to any one class of subjects, but the scope of the new programme is world-wide. It covers the entire domain of human interests and activities, at home and abroad. It is, therefore, as instructive as it is entertaining. The great popularity and reputation established locally by Mr. Howe on his many previous visits presages a record attendance.

With Mr. Howe the audience will witness all the enthusiasm, strain and struggle of the intercollegiate water and land athletics, followed by regatta contests in India. On the beautiful waterway to Mandalay will be seen the magnificent barges honored by the presence of the Prince and Princess of Wales. Cavalry maneuvers of Italian officers, which include rocky dashes down precipitous cliffs into mountain streams. The jungle pictures are especially delightful; Mount Vesuvius in fiery eruption with molten lava flowing down its sides, will be some of the main features of the exhibition.

A Year of Blood.

The year 1903 will long be remembered in the home of F. N. Tackett of Alliance, Ky., as a year of blood, which flowed so copiously from Mr. Tackett's lungs that death seemed very near. He writes: "Severe bleeding from the lungs and a frightful cough had brought me to death's door, when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, with the astonishing result that after taking four bottles I was completely restored and as time has proven permanently cured." Guaranteed for sore lungs, coughs and colds, at the Red Cross pharmacy. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

A CARD.

We, the undersigned, do hereby agree to refund the money on a 50-cent bottle of Green's Warrented Syrup of Tar if it fails to cure your cough or cold. We also guarantee a 25-cent bottle to prove satisfactory or money refunded.

The novelty of "The College Widow" which will be seen at the opera house next Friday evening is carried out in the settings of the play as well as in the theme and dialogue. For the first time a college gymnasium is utilized, this being the scene of the faculty reception to the new students. Walter Burgrave has painted two beautiful exteriors for the first and last acts showing the Atwater campus in early fall and the village square Thanksgiving night. The third act is devoted to the annual football struggle between Atwater and Bingham and the scene represents one end of the grand stand extending over the gates between the players quarters and the athletic field. Tickets Wednesday night at 7 o'clock.

CORN STORAGE.

A Substantial Crib and Tool Room at Small Cost.

The accompanying illustration is of a corncrib made in a very substantial and economical manner of green beech lumber. It stands on oak blocks a foot above ground. Crosspieces are nailed inside to each upright for braces. A door at the end leads to a room about six feet square, with sliding partition boards, which is used for salt barrel, feed casket and a few common tools. The base is boarded up as a windbreak, but left partly open for the protection of quails and other winter birds while feeding. It is twenty-four feet long and six wide by ten high and has a capacity, less the end room mentioned, of 625 bushels.

This is located near Milton, Ind. About it are many troughs made of hollow logs, sawed and split, in which a herd of Angus cattle are fed. It is a prominent farming and feeding section where approved methods are followed.

There are advantages in cribbing corn outside the barn. It will dry and keep better. It enables one to keep the premises in better shape and to feed stock where it will require much less care.—Orange Judd Farmer.

Lime Whitewash.

It is quite generally used on tree trunks and in poultry houses. No insects like to rest on a whitewashed surface: scale and other sucking insects either cannot or will not puncture a lime coating, while if the wash is well put on these that hide in crevices and these filled with disagreeable material and seek other quarters. Whitewash alone will not kill scale insects, but if it is applied just before they hatch the young may be sealed-up and their setting prevented.—New England Homestead.

Alcohol From Corn Cobs.

The department of agriculture is developing a new industry in the production of alcohol from corn cobs, which, the department says, promises to be of much commercial value. Investigations are being made at Hopedon, Ill., and have proved that the large quantities of corn cobs which every year go to waste can be made to produce alcohol in sufficient quantities to justify the erection of a distilling plant in connection with a corn cannery.

So far the department has succeeded by simple methods of fermentation in getting a yield of eleven gallons of alcohol from a ton of green cobs and by similar methods in getting six gallons of alcohol from a ton of green corn stalks. A department official says that these tests show that there are 240 pounds of fermentable substance in a ton of green field corn stalks, which will yield about half of their weight in absolute alcohol. In round numbers, a ton of stalks will produce ten pounds of alcohol, or 200 pounds of proof spirits. As a gallon of alcohol weighs nearly seven pounds, there should be fifteen gallons of alcohol in a ton of stalks. The addition of the corn on the cob adds further to the possibilities of alcohol obtainable from a ton of cobs and will have its influence in bringing the quantity to a greater figure.—Farm Press.

Alfalfa in an Orchard.

On the question as to sowing alfalfa in a pear or apple orchard, the Rural New Yorker gives the following information:

The chief objection to alfalfa in an orchard is that the alfalfa requires a large amount of water and in a dry season would be likely to rob the trees. We should consider it a great mistake to sow alfalfa in a young orchard, even if the crop is cut regularly. The trees would suffer. In an older orchard, especially where the soil was naturally moist, we would sow alfalfa under some conditions. We saw near Syracuse, N. Y., an apple orchard about fifteen years old with a heavy stand of alfalfa. The trees were in fine condition. The chief objection seemed to be that the alfalfa made a good nesting place for mice, which gnawed the trees somewhat. In this case two cuttings of alfalfa were made into hay, while the third was cut and left on the ground. The manure made from feeding the alfalfa was hauled back and spread in the orchard. Handled in this way, the trees had made a fine growth, while the alfalfa had added a new business to the farm. There was a large barn, and on seeing it we supposed it was like others—an abandoned barn given up when the change was made from dairying to fruit. To our surprise the reverse was true. The great crop of alfalfa growing in the orchard had made it necessary to build the barn for winter feeding of stock.

FEDERATION NOTES.

The financial report for eleven months of the American Federation of Labor's fiscal year showed the receipts to be $182,800, the balance on hand Oct. 1, 1905, $114,285, making a total of $307,085. The expenditures for the eleven months were $208,782, leaving the balance on hand Sept. 3 of $100,423.

Secretary Morrison of the American Federation reports that in 1906 charters were issued to six international unions, four state branches, forty-nine central bodies and 229 federal labor unions and local trades unions, an increase of twenty chartered bodies over 1905.

Besides the amounts contributed by unions in other ways, the records show that the twenty-five international unions contributed $146,225 direct to the relief of the San Francisco sufferers. The American Federation of Labor is attempting to reorganize the motor men, conductors and other employees of the street railways of New York city.

FLOWER AND TREE.

The olive lives better under water than any other tree.

Water the roses at morning, never at night, and too much water produces mildew and disease.

Well grown sunflowers should reach a height of twelve feet, and the center of the flower, or seed portion, should measure three feet in diameter.

Nitrate of soda added to the water with which a Boston fern is moistened will, it is said, stimulate a sickly plant. The proportions recommended are one teaspoonful to three quarts of water and applied at intervals of about three weeks.

Butterflies.

Butterflies are considered nutritious and delicious food by the aborigines of Australia.

Eye Color.

The gray eye is an almost universal characteristic of people of great intellect. Black eyes indicate an ardent temper, while light blue eyes, which are found chiefly among the Scandinavians, denote a cheerful disposition and a constant nature.
